

TEETHING TIMELINE

Teething usually begins between the ages of four and nine months and most babies will cut their first tooth by one year. Some babies cut their first tooth as early as three months whilst others may start teething as late as one year of age. It is not uncommon for the teething process to last for up to 18 months from beginning to end. The timing varies from child to child, but you should see the first two bottom teeth (the lower central incisors) starting to emerge at around 6 months of age. Sometimes baby teeth appear earlier or later than shown here, but most children will have a full set of 20 milk teeth by their third birthday.
